

Focus for Reading: What does the author, Richard Connell, do to involve readers in his short story, "The Most Dangerous Game," so that they want to find out how the adventure story ends? How does he interest readers from the beginning and build suspense to keep their interest?